Religious Education

Name the Saint!

My feast day is January 4th. I was born in New York, USA to a wealthy doctor. My father was not religious but he taught me how to care for the poor. My mother and stepmother were both Episcopalian and they taught me the importance of prayer and the Bible. When I was 19, I married a wealthy businessman and we had 5 children. However, my husband's company went bankrupt and his health began to fail. We were invited to Italy by friends who thought the warm climate would help him, but unfortunately shortly after we arrived in Italy, he died. I was left to care for our 5 young children by myself, but our friends were Catholic and they had begun to teach me about the Catholic faith. Back in New York, attending church was what pulled me through, but after I became Catholic my family turned against me, leaving me completely on my own. I found strength through God's help and began to help others. I opened the first American Catholic parish school, founded the first American Religious community for women (Daughters of Charity of St. Joseph), and helped the poor in many other ways. I was the first person born in the United States to be declared a saint. Who am I?

ANSWER: St. Elizabeth Ann Seton
